First of the "Objectionable Candidates" Bowled Out by Grant.

For a time it looked as if Wissig in tended to combat Grant's desire to get him off the ticket, but he weakened to-

He said that himself and his lieutenants would meet this afternoon and select a man.

Two hours later Wissig called at Police Headquarters and filed with Chief Clerk Kipp, the usual declination required by law. His name will therefore not appear on the official ballots.

Wissig was quiet and much cast down to-day, and his wife, who on Saturday had threatened to lead an army of women to Grant's headquarters and there tell him some unpleasant truths, was not at the store. It was rumored that Tim had given Phil a little advice as to the advisability of keeping his wife out of Third District politics.

"Sliver Deliar" Smith is, however, smiling and happy. He said to-day that he was still in the race for Alderman, and that his leader, Tim Sullivan, would not allow him to be turned down.

Mr. Grant bas not yet male up his mind to tell reporters the mames of the other Tammany candidates whom he considers objectionable. It is thought in some quarters that the severe criticism his remark about "objectionable candidates" has called out may have induced him to change his intentions in that respect.

This remark, used in comparison with the character of the men whom he as Mayor appointed to office, is conceeded to have hurt Mr. Grant very much with the respectable voters, who have recognized it as a trick to capture their support.

Among ex-Mayor Grant's callers this morning was Harry Miner, who said he merely dropped around to pay his respects.

"It will surely be elected to Congress."

"I will surely be elected to Congress," said Mr. Miner. "It is only a question of how large my majority will be. I estimate that I will poil from 3.500 to 6.000 votes more than my opponents."
John Connolly, Tammany candidate for Congress in the Fourteenth District, was at Mr. Grant's headquarters this morning somewhat incensed over a report that he was one of the candidates whose resignation Mr. Grant insisted on having. Mr. Connelly said the report could not be desied too vigorously. He has, he says, no intention of retiring.

The Czar suffered from severe con tusions on both sides of the body, and these, it is added, doubtless caused some internal injury, as he has never been quite well since. It was reported at the time of this ac-
